World History Final Project Options

Option 1 - World History Dictionary
- End Product: 10 letter dictionary consisting of a historical figure, a place of historical significance and a event or idea of historical significance.
- Any 10 letters can be chosen, but you CAN NOT REPEAT LETTERS.
- For each person, place, event and/or idea there needs to be a 5-7 sentence paragraph accompanying each item. So for each letter, there should be 3 paragraphs total.
- The paragraph should focus on explaining the significance of the item. In other words, why is it considered critical in history.
- For each letter, you need to include 1 image (this can be from online sources) depicting either the person, place, or event/idea. So for each letter, there should only be 1 picture.
- The writing should be in your own words! Please list your sources in a works cited page.
- This can be done using GoogleDocs/Word Doc, Google Slides/PowerPoint, or Hard Copy.

Option 2 - Collection of 5 short stories
- End Product: Collection of 5 short stories (at least 1 page in length for each short story).
- You are assuming the role of a time traveler. Your task is to create 5 short stories, each at least a full page in length. Minimum amount of pages accepted is 5.
- In each short story, you need to “visit” a different period or event in history. So in the final product, we should see 5 completely different periods/events throughout history.
- What needs to be evident to the teacher is that you understand key pieces of information for each period/event (follow rubrics) and that comprehension comes through in your writing.
- This should be like writing historical fiction. You can write your character in the narrative of history!
- This can be presented as a Word Document or a handwritten journal (if writing by hand, it needs to be formally submitted, I will not accept notebook paper/sloppy presentation.

In order to maximize student-engagement and options for the project, you can research and include individuals, places, events/ideas, periods and events that we did not cover in class!
